No Denouncement

It has been 51 Days

Fifty-one days ago, at the shopping plaza in Waterford Lakes, something most people thought was long gone surfaced in our town of Orlando. We anarchists and anti-fascists know that Nazis never really left. On the same day as their pathetic demonstration and attention stunt, so many UCF RSO's including the GOP club denounced them. The fucking republican club denounced the Nazi attack before the board of directors and executives said anything. And the message they did send out contains nothing but filler information about not tolerating discrimination. That letter did not once mention the word Nazi, crazy that we live in a world where it is controversial to say that Nazis are bad. That is why they feel comfortable doing this, that is why we think they're coming back, when they've always been around, just hiding in the shadows. As a student you can take action against this. Call and email president Alexander Cartwright. Take direct action, protesting works well for college campuses. Continue to spread the word, because the one thing they want is for us to stop talking about it and stop acting on it. That means that they win, and a place where fascists win, is a place where nobody wants to be.

THE TRIAL OF ERIC KING

Proven innocent, police proven corrupt...again.

A fellow comrade, Eric King, took direct action against the government in the wake of Ferguson back in 2014. Most of us were too young to remember what happened. Long story short, there were many protests after Michael Brown was shot and killed by a pig who got away with murder.

Eric King was originally arrested and charged for the attempted firebombing of a Congressperson's office in Kansas. The main reason why he was originally a suspect was because of his anti-government and anti-police street art.

Anyway, if you'd like to learn more about his first trial or the background of the Ferguson unrest feel free to look it up. This article is about his recent trial where some fuckface prison guard assaulted King and turned the blame on him, and this made King have to go to another trial and face up to 20 additional years in prison.

This piece of shit guard took Eric King to a broom closet without any camera surveillance and proceeded to attack King without warning. Fearing for his safety, King attacked back.

After the trial and deliberation of the jury, they found Eric King innocent of assaulting a government official. Now he should be released in about two years.

If you would like to support Eric King and his family, you can write to him at, be sure to check up on the prisons rules on what you can and cannot send in the mail, and follow the other rules of writing to prisoners

So, what the fuck is mutual aid?

And how can I help as a broke-ass college student?

Mutual Aid is the backbone for all function anarchist groups. It helps to unite us in our cause and help out those who are worse off than us. Mutual aid is the exchange of community labor and resources to show solidarity in the class struggle.

For too long our society has been a survival of the fittest. Forcing so many people into a life of squalor, crime, exploitation, or no life at all. And mutual aid seeks to mitigate that.

Mutual aid might be seen as a clothing drive, a brakelight clinic, CPR/First aid training, a community picnic, etc.

In a time where welfare programs are being cut, and wages are decreasing, mutual aid is becoming increasingly necessary.

“But Osprey, I go to college, I don’t have any money”. Fret not my friend, there are ways you can help without paying out of your nearly empty pockets.

Do you know any useful skills? You can become a teacher for members of your community or offer your skills at certain applicable mutual aid events. Things like repair, cooking, first aid, organizing tactics, etc. are all very useful to mutual aid groups.

Donations are also very helpful. Do you have clothes that you don’t wear or outgrew? Bring them to a clothing drive. Do you have extra non-perishable food that has been in your pantry since you moved into the dorms? Drop it off at a food bank or bring it to a community kitchen. Knight’s pantry is an amazing resource to help your fellow students.

I have struggled with poverty in the past, and I’m certainly not wealthy now. Mutual aid has helped me and my family a lot in the past, along with so many others. If you’d like to learn how to get involved, reach out to me at ospreyorl@riseup.net

NIGHTHAWK

Groups to look out for

And how to identify them

NSM: Also called “National Socialist Movement”. These “people” like to play dress up and are often wearing military-like garb and Nazi insignias. They use standard Nazi symbols and dogwhistles

Atomwaffen: Not as large as it once used to be, but they are a violent Nazi group. They prefer more “dogwhistley” symbols like the black sun and certain runes. They dress in paramilitary outfits, often with old german military helmets and skull face coverings.

Patriot Front: This group is a rebrand of Vanguard America. They opted for a more America patriot look to attract more members. A lot of their symbols will include a bald eagle holding arrows, or a cactus surrounded by stars. They are a newer group and are mostly focused on publicity rather than violence.

There are others, they will be in the next issue, rn I’m outta room.

Easy ways to spread your message

I am personally a fan of stickers, you can just peel them off, slap them up, and put a few slices in and keep walking.

I get most of mine from Radical Graffiti or Filler Distro, but you can make your own using blank sticker paper, shipping labels, etc. Just be sure to crosshatch it with a knife so it is harder for people to peel off.

Wheatpasting is another good method. It is cost-effective and only takes a few seconds. Start by printing some designs on a regular sheet of copy paper and cut them out. Then use a recipe for wheatpaste, which can be found online but feel free to experiment with it. Then spread the paste to your surface (metal, glass, and plastic are the best, but it sticks literally anywhere). Slap your cutout on there and cover with more paste. Then just keep on walking and put more up. When decorating, it is best to cover your face and hair so you’re not easily identified.
